ANNUAL REPORT 2019

ENVIRONMENT & CLIMATE ACTION

International Day of Peace

On 21 September 2019 in commemorating the International Day of Peace, the All-Africa Students Union put together an in-house discussion on what climate change is and how it is affecting current and future livelihoods. The discussion was held at the secretariat and was generally geared towards building the knowledge of the staff on matters concerning the environment and climate action as well and how it is and can affect global peace.

Climate Change has been recognized as a global challenge that needs the action of the international community of states. The impact of climate change goes beyond the environment. At the national, regional and global levels, climate change is having a significant effect on economies, social development and particularly peace and security. We enjoy peace when our necessities are met satisfactorily and our livelihood is secure. The All-Africa Students Union is looking forward to engaging more students and authorities in bringing a solution to the threats being posed to our planet and its future.

CAPACITY BUILDING

Young Africa Leaders' Summit

Young Politicians and Leaders Network (YPLN) in partnership with the All Africa Students Union (AASU) organized a two-day summit at the Accra International Conference Centre (AICC) from 22 - 23 November 2019. The Young Africa Leaders' Summit – (YALS19) was organized with the goal of promoting youth participation and ownership of the governance and policy-making processes. The summit was organized under the theme, "Securing the Future of Africa; the Role of the African Youth, Young Business Leaders, and Entrepreneurs".

The summit had country representation from most and was considered a timeous intervention as the youth are demanding a place at the table of governance. Former President of the Republic of Ghana, H.E John Dramani Mahama was the Special Guest of Honour.

Global Peace Inter-Generational Dialogue

The All-Africa Students Union (AASU) partnered African Centre for the Peace is an initiative engineered by ACCORD to foster a global discussion among young future leaders, city mayors, captains of industry and country leaders to deliberate on what their aspirations for a better world should look like.

The program had in attendance, the President of the Republic of Ghana H.E Nana Addo Dankwa Akufo-Addo, Mrs. Graça Machel, Chair of the ACCORD Board of Trustees and Global Peace and more than 500 other delegates drawn from different sectors of the country including, university and school students, traditional leaders, civil society organizations, government ministries, and the diplomatic corps. It sought to give young people the opportunity Constructive Resolution of Disputes (ACCORD) to launch the Global Peace Inter-Generational Dialogue on May 6, 2019, at Kempinski Hotel in Accra, Ghana. Global to engage with, and share their ideas, on global issues that impact their future.

During the opening remarks by the Chair of the ACCORD Board of Trustees, Mrs. Graça Machel, she challenged young people to take advantage of the knowledge they have with technology to advocate and work with African leaders to address the crisis situations that exist on the continent. She reminded young people that the Global Peace Inter-Generational Dialogues were created to give young people a voice in shaping the future.

The Accra Dialogue was the first in a series of Dialogues that Global Peace convened across the world, now the dialogue has been carried out in over 30 cities around the world.

International Day for the elimination of violence against women

The annual 16-day campaign started from November to 10 December 2019. AASU commemorated the campaign by combining an online campaign and an onsite program. The online campaign was held on the 28th of November where a post went viral with the theme "End gender-based violence; Stand against violence". And on the 10th of December, the onsite program was held at Levite Primary School, with a population of 203 pupils. The Gender Advocacy Working Group educated the student about their rights as children, the signs of violence and who to talk to if their rights were violated and abused.

International Day for the girl child

The International Day for the Girl Child was held on 11 October 2019 at the Accra High School with a population of over 500 students. The theme for the program was "Empowering Girls for a Brighter Tomorrow Through Education. The slogan, "GirlForce: Unscripted and Unstoppable" was used. Among the speakers were representatives from the Department of Gender and Open Foundation West Africa. The Secretary for Gender and International Relations also spoke at the event.

The program was held with the purpose of empowering girls to appreciate the power education presents to them in forging a brighter future.

International day of zero tolerance to female genital mutilation

The international day of zero tolerance for female genital mutilation is a United Nations (UN) campaign held on 6 February 2019 to stop genital mutilation amongst girls and women. This was an onsite program that was held at the Ghana Lebanon Islamic girls an estimated population of about 300 students. The theme for the program was “END FGM NOW”. The main speeches at the program were delivered by the Secretary-General of AASU and Chief Operating Officer of the AASU Secretariat.

PAN-AFRICANISM & AFRICAN CULTURE

The Oxford Africa Conference 2019

Hosted by the University of Oxford Africa Society, the Oxford Africa Conference was the leading interdisciplinary conference on Africa. The conference brought together policymakers, business leaders, academics, artists, students, and professionals of African descent to critically expand the discourse and action on Africa. The conference was also the society's annual call to action: the opportunity for coalescing

100 Million Rally in Kenya

This a march to parliament for the rights of children. The march started at BMF Centre Mathare at 10 am with the THEME “WHEN WILL EVERY CHILD HAVE JUSTICE”. This is global action demanding the answers to When Every Child Have Justice?. The children march all the way to where the laws are made in the country to present a petition to the member of parliament on Children's Rights to safety, education, and freedom. The chair of the parliament caucus Hon. Millie Mabone accompanied by Hon. Rosa Buya and Hon. Janet Ongera received the petition with a commitment to give them a better future. The children's petition was quickly included in the opening statement of the senate. The legislator made their commitment to support the cause of children.

ideas and initiatives that can augment and create opportunities for African individuals, companies and organizations. The year's theme was “Asserting African's Relevance, Locally, Continentally, and Globally” and the summit recorded approximately 300 participants.

The All-Africa Students Union (AASU) being the largest student front in Africa partnered the University of Oxford Africa Society in this year's Oxford Africa Conference where the Secretary-General of the AASU, Mr. Peter Kwasi Kodjie and the Secretary for Gender, Ms. Angel Mbutia were all panel moderators at the conference. The Secretary-General moderated a session on “Amandla! Awethu! Social Movement Challenges the Status Quo for Good Governance” while Ms. Angel Mbutia, Secretary for Gender moderated the session on “Taking Stock of Africa Culture Capital For Social and Economic Development”.

MIGRATION & MOBILITY

International Students Day

The International Students’ Day (ISD) program was organized by the Democracy and Good Governance working group together with the Migration and Mobility working group. The program was held on the 12th of November 2019 at the auditorium of the Association of African Universities (AAU). The ISD forum was partnered with Africa Union (AU), the International Organization for Migration (IOM), the Association of African Universities (AAU) and the African Leaders and Sustainable Development Network (ALDEN).

The Forum identified the need to improve information at every level within the academic mobility process, urged student unions to continue their advocacy on academic mobility on raising the awareness within universities and beyond and created a better relation between governmental entities and university institutions especially when it came to the administrative processes of traveling abroad, credit transfers and qualifications and certificates. The Forum also observed concerns in terms of funding and recommended that efforts be put into improving the image of academia to raise the interest of other contributors. Furthermore, the Forum also noted the importance of political actors addressing academic mobility on the international level, identified the challenges and prospects of the GCM and observed the positive approach to HAQAA which suggested that good partnerships should be upheld with international actors such as European Union. Lastly, the Forum noted the dynamism that emerged from the youth and calls for the ongoing commitment of all stakeholders to maintain academic mobility as a priority.

EDUCATION & STUDENTS' RIGHTS

Education Enrolment Programme

On December 10th, 2019 which marks the International Human Rights Day, All Africa Students Union, 100Million Campaign and

Factor Global embarked on the Every Child Rally in Ghana (Mankessim) in the Central Region. The meeting was held at Key International School, a deprived school in the community. The community leaders were part of the meeting.

EEP is a project that will bring children of school-going age but are not yet in school back to formal education, Key International School is receiving support from AASU and 100 Million Campaign to bring children of the school-going age in the community to formal education. Key International School is the first settled school and other schools will be considered soon.

Africa Educators Forum

On the 22nd of October, 2019 the maiden edition of Africa Educators Forum was held at the Accra College of Education auditorium. The Africa Educators Forum was held as part of the World Teachers Day which is observed to honor the role of the teacher as an agent of change in the society under the theme: Young Teachers, The Future of The Profession.

The program which was a collaborative program with the Association of Africa Universities (AAU) and participant from Ministry of Education, Hon Dr. Yaw Adutwum Ghana's Deputy Minister (In charge of Basic Education), and Teacher Trainees Association of Ghana(TTAG) was intended to bring all stakeholders in the teaching profession in Africa (with special focus in Ghana) together to discuss at length current and future reforms to be considered in making the profession highly preferred one devoid of its challenges that come within the profession.

Commonwealth Youth Council Online Panel Discussion

In 2019, the International Youth Day focused on Transforming Education. Highlighting the efforts of stakeholders (Government, Young People, and Youth-led & Youth-Focused organizations, etc) in the area of education. The Commonwealth Youth Council; Africa and Europe Committee in line with the theme hosted an Online Panel Discussion on the theme; Transforming Education to Meet the Demands of the Future of Work on Saturday, 10th August 2019 which was Live on Facebook. The Event sought to advocate and address the Quality of Education across both Regions whiles highlighting the work of the youth, youth-led and youth-focused organizations. The Secretary-General of the All-Africa Students Union was present on the panel to discuss the pertinent issues concerning the transformation of education to meet the demands of the future of work.

GENERAL ACTIVITIES

African Universities Olympics

Teams, coaches and spectators from 27 African countries, 17 African universities and the 5 regions of Africa thronged Cairo to participate in the African Universities Olympics organized by the Association of African Universities, the Al-Azhar University, and the All Africa Students Union – supported by the Government of the Arab Republic of Egypt. The 14th of March 2019 was the day the maiden 2019 African Universities Olympics event was officially opened. The Olympics was held at the Main Sports Stadium of the Military College in Cairo, Egypt. Professor Yousuf Amer the Vice President of Al-Azhar University raised the championship flag whilst the President of Al-Azhar University declared the African Olympics officially launched.

The Olympics run was from 15-18 March 2019. The sports categories included football, basketball, and athletics. The events featured male and female teams/competitors. The 27 countries represented at the maiden event was Algeria, Benin, Burundi, Cameroon, Chad, Comoros, Cote d'Ivoire, Egypt, Eritrea, Gabon, Ghana, Libya, Madagascar, Malawi, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia. Some of the outcomes include:

- Increased cooperation across the African continent among African Youth through the building of networks during and after the Olympics events
- Improved self-discipline and self-esteem of the young African people
- Promotion of tolerance of diverse cultures and religious affiliations
- Promotion of language learning
- Improved Physical health
- Increased teamwork and problem-solving skills

- Reduction of pressure and stress – hopefully reducing cases of drug abuse and depression

African Universities Olympics was a key strategy for promoting the integration of the continent through sports – and this was in-line with the African Union Agenda 2063's aspiration of "an integrated continent, politically united, based on the ideals of Pan Africanism and the vision of Africa's Renaissance".

100million Campaign Global Steering Group Meeting

On the 7th of September, 2019 the Secretary-General for the All-Africa Students Union (AASU) H.E Peter Kwasi Kodjie joined the 100million Campaign Global Steering Group meeting which was held in London. The meeting was to discuss how every child will be free, safe and educated.

AASU Leadership Calls on former President Kuffour

The Secretary-General of the All-Africa Students Union, Mr. Peter Kwasi Kodjie has led a delegation to the Former President H.

E. John Agyekum Kufuor to brief him on the upcoming Global Youth Meeting in Accra.

Former President Kufuor is one of the long-standing Patrons of the All Africa Students Union since his tenure of office.

The Former President described AASU as a continental body that is instrumental and dedicated to the holistic welfare and development of African Students.

The Secretary-General of AASU, Peter Kodjie, stated that the global youth meeting will host global and various continental Youth leaders to discuss the future of youth development in Accra, Ghana.

The Global Youth meeting was scheduled for 14 to 19 June 2019

Africa Students and Youth Summit (ASYS) 2019

Every year, under the banner, “Africa Students and Youth Summit” (ASYS), AASU brings together African students and youth, both on the Continent and in the Diaspora to deliberate on crucial issues affecting the state of education and prosperity of our common future as young Africans. The ASYS is the largest student and youth gathering on the Continent. In the previous editions, the summit served as a very important platform for students and young people to deliberate and come up with solutions to the challenges that inhibit their quest for attaining sustainable development for a prosperous Africa.

The 8th Africa Students and Youth Summit, held on 20 – 23 December 2019 in Rabat, Morocco (Under the High patronage of His Majesty King Mohammed VI; may God help him) was the latest in a series of AASU events designed to bring together humanitarian experts, private sector companies, academic institutions, investors, donors, and youth and student leaders to share current programs and solutions in addressing “The Future of Africa - Prospects and Challenges for Young People”. The summit provided the All-Africa Students Union an opportunity to connect with its partners from across the world to solidify working relationships to the benefit of the African student/youth and the world at large.

Young people are the drivers of Africa’s economy and the future. With eleven million youth expected to enter Africa’s labor market every year for the next decade, now is the time for urgent action to build and nurture the region’s human capital. Based on current projections, the continent’s population of nearly 1.2 billion people will rise to 2.5 billion by the middle of this century—more than China and India combined. From there, it becomes harder to predict with any certainty, but Africa could very well have a staggering 4 billion people or more by 2100, according to United Nations projections, meaning that the African continent alone would account for more than a third of the human population.

The summit basically focused on the future of Africa through the lens of inspirational youth leaders, policymakers, and civil society to collectively highlight the challenges, aspirations, and actions taken to help build the human capital of the next generation. This year’s summit was also unique in such a way that it included non-African citizens and how they play a role in developmental agendas both at the continental and global levels.

Activities lined up for the summit included presentations, roundtable discussions, learning sessions and a host of other programs, which afforded participating Unions and organizations the opportunity to interact with, and learn from each other, especially from organizations making a significant impact on education to ensure quality assurance in Africa.

Of utmost importance was a constitutional review, which formed part of activities for the year’s summit. The review was highly consultative to address the concerns of all members and stakeholders of AASU. Delegates also discussed pertinent issues concerning the Union and the way forward towards the attainment of a reputable status with a stronger voice both at the continental and global levels. There was also the adoption of the 5-year strategic plan for the Union.

The summit also helped to promote collaboration among participants through continuous cooperation, experience sharing and the encouragement of the growth of multi-disciplinary and multi-sectoral associations. This was achieved not only through conference proceedings, but also participation in social events including the music festival, sports day and a trip to the Hassan II International Center for Environmental Training.

The highlight of the summit was that young people want to be a part of the solution and not the problem. Young people want to be recognized and engaged appropriately as the future of the African continent. Young African people are now more connected through this summit to make change across the continent and beyond.

THE ALL AFRICA STUDENTS UNION

AASU was formed in 1972 to serve as the commanding height of all students' and youth movements in Africa.

With over four decades of its existence, the organization has made a lot of monumental gains and achievements since its formation. As a continental student/youth organization, AASU set for itself such objectives as the integration of youth and student movements into the overall socio-economic development of the Continent through pan-Africanism, defending students' right, democratization and equal access to education at all levels, and the fostering of academic freedom, freedom of research, autonomy of higher institutions of learning, and the promotion of peace and democratic culture, and other noteworthy objectives.

Since its inception in 1972, AASU now has presence in all 54 Countries in Africa, and has played among others, an important role in the struggle against colonialism and apartheid. Today, AASU is at the forefront of the fights for equal access to quality education, quality assurance in higher education, harmonization of higher education systems – with key emphasis on mobility of academics and comparability of qualifications, democratic governance, respect of human rights and gender, promotion of African culture, sustainable development, entrepreneurship development, etc.
