FOREWORD

The All-Africa Students Union (AASU) is honoured to welcome you to the Breast Cancer Awareness and Education Event in the Madina Nkwantanang community.

This initiative embodies our commitment to promoting student and community welfare, advancing gender equality, and raising awareness on critical health issues that affect women and families across Africa with a legacy of over five decades of impactful advocacy, AASU continues to champion the well-being of students, youth, and women. Through strategic partnerships and community engagement, we believe that health is not a privilege but a fundamental human right.

This collaboration with Impact Clinic Reinforces our mission to empower communities through education, health awareness, and early detection initiatives.

Together, we strive to save lives through knowledge, screening, and collective action.

Peter Kwasi Kodjie
Secretary General
All-Africa Students Union

BACKGROUND

Breast cancer is one of the most common cancers affecting women globally, with increasing cases recorded in African communities due to limited awareness, late detection, and inadequate access to healthcare services. Early diagnosis significantly increases survival rates, yet many women lack access to life-saving information and screening.

This community-focused event aims to narrow the information gap, promote awareness, and encourage early screening and treatment. Collaborating with reputable medical professionals and community stakeholders, this outreach program seeks to combine education, advocacy, and preventive health services for sustainable impact.
